Anyone who buys a coffee maker knows that standard coffee choices are far from great. Coffee is my favorite drink so it's no wonder that I decided to take a look for a better coffee brewing technique. The best coffee I've tried is made with Keurig K-Cup Pods. In my experience, they give you a super rich, full bodied coffee every time. The problem is that pouring outscer and filling in is not that easy. It's simply annoying! Coffee is one of the most popular beverages in the world. It's also one of the most common reasons for households to invest in a coffee maker. Coffee makers can be a ridiculous expense for the most part. The popularity of home coffee machines has led to companies trying their best to reduce the cost of brewing coffee by selling coffee in packets. Keurig is an industry leader in the coffee making segment. They are everywhere and make some of the best coffee makers on the market. A well known pioneer in the coffee maker industry, the first Keurig was developed in 1982. Many other cup brewers had been sold on the market over the years but none were successful in the long run. Keurig was the first company to utilize a pod system and introduce it's line in 1984. The packaging of the Keurig coffee maker had little relevance to coffee, they were attempting to sell drink pods to the masses. The early Keurigs were heavily flawed with awkward designs and fraudulent methods of brewing coffee. Today, the modern Keurig coffee maker still has some tweaks to it's methods of making coffee that differ from the original design. The most noticeable difference is the two types of pods available. The earlier Keurig machines used whole grain versions of the coffee pods. The newer pods, which were introduced with the K25 in 2011, are a blended pulse type. The early pods resembled more the type of pods you'd find in a Dixie cup. They were made from a blend of certain types of coffee beans that were dried together.

There are four ways that this can be done: Strength: Depending on the Strength setting, the blur effect can be linear or nonlinear. This has the greatest effect on similar color. With the Strength setting at 3, the color stops changing at the 33% and 66% value. With the strength at 1, this is set at the 50%.
